WORSHIP THEME: The Fulfilment of the Law in Christ's Love

What does it mean to love God and our neighbour?

Jesus makes it sound straightforward: love God with all your heart, soul and mind, and love your neighbour as yourself. Yet when we take those words seriously, we may discover that loving as God calls us to love is harder than we think.

This Reformation Sunday, we'll revisit the question that troubled Martin Luther: how can we stand before a holy God when we know we fall short? What does God's Law reveal about us, and how does the message Luther rediscovered speak to our lives today? As we explore these questions, we'll also consider how our faith shapes the way we treat the people around us.

Today we reflect on the connection between God's commands, his promises, and the everyday relationships in which our faith is lived out.
